Note. This summary is compiled from the 2005 annual reports of the Council of Editors and from Central Office records. Corresponding figures for 2004 can be found in the July–August 2005 issue of American Psychologist. Numbers are rounded off to the nearest whole number. Jnl. = Journal; Psyc. = Psychology; JEP = Journal of Experimental Psychology; NR = not reported; NA = not applicable.

[a] Includes manuscripts for which final editorial decisions had not been made as of December 31, 2005. By the date of this report, decisions will have been reached on most of these manuscripts. [b] The rejection rate indicates the chance of ultimate acceptance by a journal. Most manuscripts are rejected initially; then, after some number of revisions, a certain number are finally accepted. A rejection rate of, say, 77% means that manuscripts submitted to that journal have a 23% chance of ultimately being accepted. The average rejection rate was calculated by dividing total acceptances by total submissions (with pending manuscripts factored out) and subtracting from 100%; it is not an average of the journal averages. [c] Includes articles, brief reports, case reports, discussions, monographs, and brief substantive items. For the secondary journals, these items are abstracts. [d] Includes tables of contents and author indexes. [e] For these journals, data for the editors and incoming editors were combined in order to reflect activity for the journals as a whole. [f] Includes award addresses, correction notices, editorials, obituaries, and instructions.
