

STICKLEY Makes a Mistake!

A Frog's Guide to Trying Again

by Brenda S. Miles

illustrated by Steve Mack

SAMPLE PAGES - NOT FOR DISTRIBUTION
© American Psychological Association

When Stickley was young, he didn't like making mistakes.
"Oh no!" he'd say, and he wouldn't try again.
He wanted to be perfect.

“But Stickley,” said Grandpa. “We’re frogs.
We stick to things—even when we make mistakes.
So instead of ‘oh no,’ say, ‘oh well.’”

“And then what?” asked Stickley.

“Look at your mistake—you’ll learn something new!
Take a new look at the problem, too!”

No one is perfect,
so practice your best!

If you’re stuck on a problem,
ask for help with the rest!

Feel proud for trying—that's what to do!
Hop up! Try again! Say 'oh well' to get through!"

STICKLEY Makes a Mistake!

A Frog's Guide to Trying Again

Stickley didn't like making mistakes. "Oh no!" he'd say, and he wouldn't try again. He wanted to be perfect.

With help from his Grandpa, Stickley learns to hop up, try again, and say "oh well" when he makes a mistake. Nobody's perfect, and good things can happen—even when you make mistakes!

Includes a Note to Parents, Caregivers, and Teachers with advice for helping children develop a healthy attitude towards making mistakes.

Magination Press
Self-Help Books for Kids and the Adults in Their Lives

Published by the American Psychological Association
www.apa.org/pubs/magination

SAMPLE PAGES - NOT FOR DISTRIBUTION
© American Psychological Association

